Al Bond, Jr. Executive Secretary-Treasurer

The moment has finally arrived. Very soon we will have the opportunity to repeal so-called “Right to Work” by voting NO on Prop A on August 7.

In 1978, I was just starting my career as a carpenter. I didn’t know at the time just how critical my vote on this issue was, but the older members made sure we understood our careers depended on it. Here we are 40 years later, and I’m nearing the end of my career. This issue is just as important and our votes are even more critical this time.

The same out-of-state corporate interests are still trying to hurt working families in Missouri. They lost in 1978, and we’re doing everything to ensure they lose again on August 7.

Thanks to the hard work of thousands of volunteers—you’re likely among them—and the more than 310,000 Missourians who signed the petition to get our repeal on the ballot, we have the chance to defeat “Right to Work” once again.

Never before have I seen unions, allies and advocates come together like we have to defeat Prop A. It’s going to take all of us to win, and more.

I’m asking you to make sure all your friends and family know to vote NO on Prop A on August 7.

- Make sure they know Prop A will drive down wages for working families. On average, the median household income in “Right to Work” states is $8,740 less.

- Tell them Prop A hurts us all. It will affect union and non-union families alike by weakening job safety, working conditions and gutting our pay, health insurance and pensions.

Ultimately, we need to make sure our friends and family know Prop A isn’t what it seems. It’s a deliberate attempt to confuse voters and attack the pay of hardworking families. It will broaden the pay gap between workers and wealthy CEOs, leaving us with lower wages and harder lives.

Our way of life is on the line. We need to do everything we can to get everyone we know to turn out to the polls on August 7 to vote NO on Prop A. Let’s send a message loud and clear that “Right to Work” is WRONG for Missouri.

A Message from the No On Prop A Campaign

Our chance to defeat “Right to Work” in Missouri is coming up on August 7th in large part because of the Carpenters Regional Council of St. Louis and Kansas City’s early and ongoing support at the highest levels of this campaign.

The No on Prop A campaign wouldn’t have been possible without allies like you. Last summer, more than 310,000 Missourians signed our petition to make sure voters statewide would get the chance to Vote NO on Proposition A and repeal so-called “Right to Work.” Because of the CRC and other allies, voters will get that chance on August 7th.

As the Campaign Manager for the No on Prop A campaign, I want to personally thank EST AI Bond for taking the lead and providing continued support from the CRC. With your help, we got this issue on the ballot and with your help, we will WIN for Missouri’s working families.

CRC members have been with us every step of the way, doing whatever we needed to get the job done – whether it was making phone calls, attending events or going door to door. That’s what you do.

So, what can you do in the short time left before election day? Volunteer when asked—we still need to knock on thousands of doors and speak with thousands of our neighbors about how important it is to defeat Proposition A on August 7th. And please make sure all your friends and family are ready to Vote NO on Prop A on August 7th.

These final days won’t be easy. The opposition is spending millions of dollars because they know that if Prop A passes, out-of-state corporations and greedy CEOs will make more money off of us by lowering our wages and slashing our benefits.

We are facing the fight of our lives to protect wages, jobs, and our voice in the workplace. We are hard at work mobilizing people to defeat Prop A. And, this campaign is going to win because hardworking people like you stood up and fought back.

Please continue to help us spread the message until August 7th that Prop A will drive down wages and cost us jobs. It is designed to confuse voters—but we are not falling for it.

See you at the polls on August 7th and thank you again for your support and leadership.

In solidarity,

Ryan Burke
No On Prop A Campaign Manager

THANK YOU CARPENTERS

REGIONAL NO ON PROP A MEETINGS

All across Missouri, hundreds of you joined EST AI Bond at regional informational events to learn about our campaign to defeat Proposition A.

From St. Louis to Kansas City, and points in between, we heard from members and families looking to volunteer and spread the truth about “Right to Work.”

“If anything good has come out of our current political battles, it’s the solidarity that we have seen in every corner of the state,” said EST AI Bond. “There’s nothing like a crisis to bring families together and I think this has reminded all of us how much strength there is in our union. I couldn’t be more proud today to call myself a union carpenter.”

After 310,000 petition signatures were collected last year, the RTW law that was passed by lawmakers and signed by the governor was put on hold, setting the stage for the Aug. 7 vote on Prop A.

Not since 1978, when “Right to Work” was last put to a vote of the people, have we experienced this level of involvement and volunteerism. Many long time members say it’s the kind of unity and strength in numbers they remember from decades past.

That kind of dedication will be even more important on Election Day. It won’t be enough to just defeat Prop A. In order to send a message and keep this terrible legislation from coming back year after year, we need a real show of force and a sizable victory.

Given what we have already seen from our members around the state, we’re on the right track.

ON OUR SIDE

In Jefferson City, a vocal minority of lawmakers has been fighting the good fight against big-money special interests hoping to get rich(er) off working families.

Is the leadership in the Missouri House eager to see us become a RTW state?

Rep. Doug Beck (D-Affton): It's pretty obvious that this was their top priority. I guess it was one of the promises that they made to their billionaire donors that they would get this done this year.

Is it tricky for Republican lawmakers who stand with us and fight against "Right to Work"?

Rep. Becky Ruth (R-Festus): Not for me. I've always stood very strong with my district. Obviously the GOP has a majority that has voted for it in the past, but you still have a portion of Republicans who are not in favor of it and they vote their districts.

Who is really behind the push to make Missouri a RTW state?

Rep. Peter Merideth (D-St. Louis): There are some legislators who really have bought into the mythology that labor is the enemy and that high wages are the enemy of a good economy. But most of them I think just go along with it because that's what their leadership tells them to do. At the Capitol, it's talked about constantly as either you're with labor or you're not with labor. You either think labor is part of the solution or you think labor is driving up wages and killing our economy, which is what they keep telling us.

What do you tell your constituents who asked about "Right to Work"?

Rep. Bruce Franks (D-St. Louis): Folks in RTW states make less money and their work environment is less safe. The people pushing this are bamboozling us with this rhetoric. Everybody has the right to work. What they're doing is just wrong.

Rep. Crystal Quade (D-Springfield): Particularly in my district, where we have a very high poverty rate, we need to do everything we can so folks are able to provide the best wages for their families. It's about protecting workers versus corporations and the corporate interests.

Do you have a prediction for Aug. 7?

Rep. Doug Beck (D-Affton): If the vote is close then I would expect them to introduce it again next year. We need to defeat it hard, and if we do, I don't think they'll come back with it again next year.

Rep. Peter Merideth (D-St. Louis): When that rally happened at the Capitol and they turned in those 310,000 signatures there was an overwhelming sense of 'holy cow, this is a real force.' I definitely think some of the Republicans started to think maybe they are wrong to keep pursuing this because the people are going to hold them accountable eventually.

Rep. Crystal Quade (D-Springfield):

I think the higher numbers we get, the longer we'll be able to push it back. But the bigger picture is the super-majority that the Republicans have right now. Until we flip some seats and bring some balance back to Jefferson City this is going to be a continued threat.

Prop A Is Wrong for Missouri

Prop A is not what it seems. Don't trust it. It will hurt working families and fail to help Missouri's middle class.

Fails to create jobs

Prop A will cost us jobs. It will make it harder for private sector employers to negotiate with their workers and effectively manage their business.¹

Drives down wages

Prop A will drive down wages and benefits for working families, making it harder to make ends meet. In states with laws similar to Prop A, workers make $8,740 less a year.²

Hurts workers

Laws like Prop A force workers to accept fewer benefits and protections, meaning higher health care costs and fewer safety protections.³

REACHING OUT

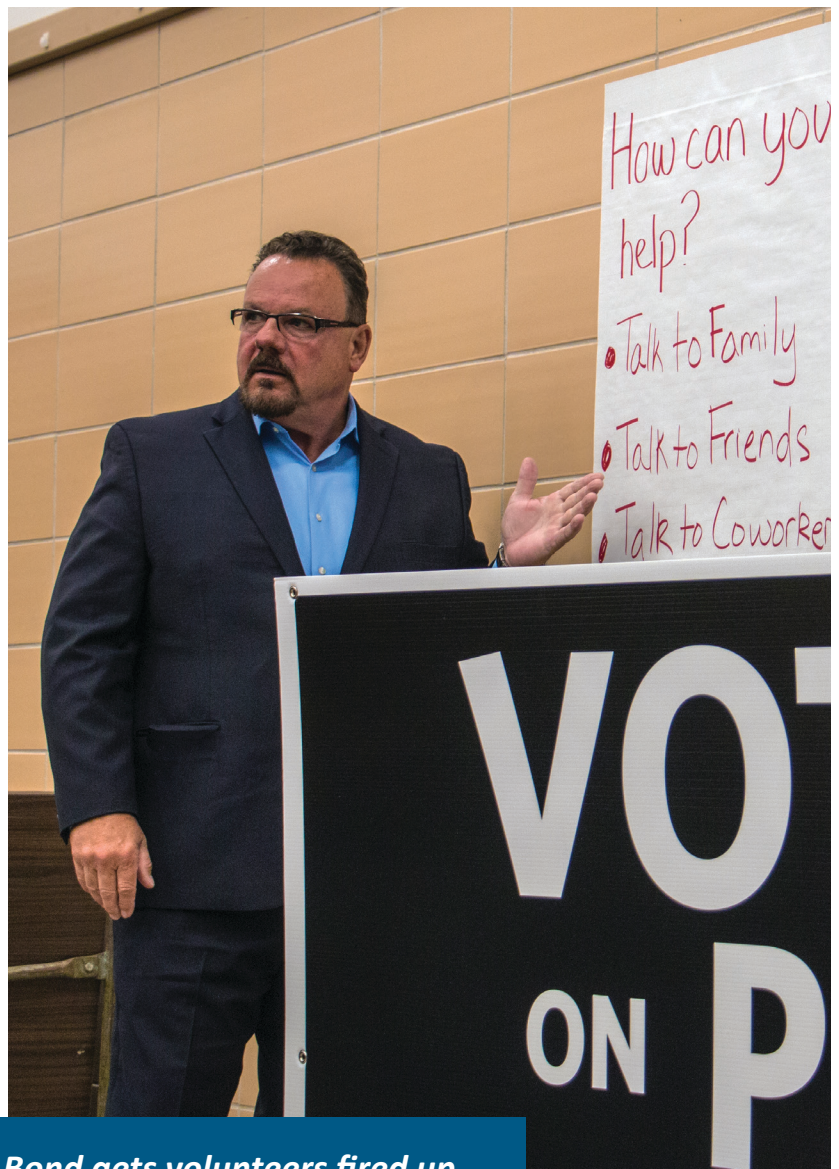

Our campaign brings us face-to-face with members, voters and everyday Missourians who will lead us to victory.

Fighting so-called “Right to Work” is not a spectator sport. It takes a real army of dedicated volunteers to expose the lies, educate the public and remind everyone to show up on Election Day on Aug. 7.

This means reaching out not just to Carpenters, but to all voters concerned about pay, job safety and worker rights in Missouri.

Phone banking and door-to-door canvassing are very effective ways to reach folks who wouldn't otherwise hear our message. The goal is to find people who care about our cause but don't know how they can help or get involved. We're not asking for money or trying to get signatures. We're simply spreading the truth about Prop A, the devastating effect it's had in other states and reminding everyone to vote on August 7.

“As much as you think you've already done, you can never take it for granted that every voter knows about Prop A and will be getting to the polls,” EST Al Bond said. “The phone calls, emails, text messages and door knocking are absolutely necessary to educate and to remind people that a very important decision affecting their futures is coming.”

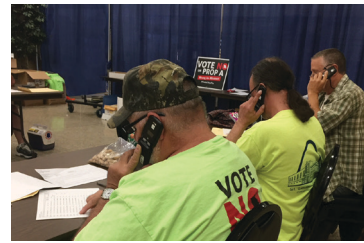

EST Al Bond gets volunteers fired up and ready to phone bank.

There has been an unprecedented coalition of trade unions and other organizations in Missouri pooling their resources to mount a winning campaign.

While the opposition has had the luxury of deep-pocketed corporate giants and billionaire political donors, We have the power of working families who have come together to defeat Prop A.

In recent months, a team of volunteer phone bankers has been working from CRC headquarters, contacting thousands of carpenters each week. In addition to phone banking and canvassing, the CRC is reaching out to members and families via direct mail, email and text. As of early July, we've also handed out 10,000 T-shirts and 15,000 yard signs to our members.

Other organizations are doing the same, reaching their membership and organizing door-knocking squads all over the state.

The news from the front lines is very encouraging. As you can probably tell from all the No On Prop A yard signs, banners and billboards dotting Missouri's highways and neighborhoods, voters are paying attention and have been telling us that they are against "Right to Work."

All of this, of course, cannot deliver a victory if we don't vote. Mark the day —Tues. Aug. 7—on your calendar and have a plan for getting to your polling place. Will you vote before work, after work or at lunch time? Plan it out, and allow yourself extra time.

Your brothers and sisters will be reaching out for your help.

DÉJÀ vu

Retired Carpenters Have Been Here Before.

Carpenter retirees vividly remember 1978 and the last time Missouri voters weighed in on “Right to Work.”

Because of the stable wages and job security that being a union Carpenter provided throughout their careers, they are some of the most active and vocal soldiers in today’s fight.

A slogan widely seen on all sorts of apparel in ‘78.

Working men and women have suffered the effects of a sluggish economy, resulting in their inability to save or build the kind of retirement nest egg that previous generations did. Retirees who have benefited from solid pensions and health care fear for the future of today’s middle class if RTW spreads.

“We are most definitely fired up about it now,” said Al Bauman, president of Retirees Club #21. “At first, some didn’t think ‘Right to Work’ affected them because they’re retired but we’ve had EST Al Bond and some business agents come to our meetings and talk to everyone. That got them fired up. It’s not just about us but also about our kids and our grandkids.”

If anything, the battle in ‘78 showed that Missouri’s working families —when threatened —can pull together and use their resources to win. It galvanized labor, delivered a stinging setback to RTW agitators, got more citizens registered to vote and increased union membership in the years that followed. And it was accomplished by people who got involved, stood together and took action to preserve their way of life.

Now that he’s retired, Mike Zuzack has had the time to travel across the country, including “Right to Work” states. “We stopped once in Mississippi and these guys were working on Labor Day,” he said. “They don’t get pensions, they don’t get health care and they’re working holidays. What does that tell you?”

Grateful for what union membership has given to them and their families, Carpenter retirees are some of the most eager volunteers and passionate spokesmen and women we have seen in defeating Proposition A on August 7.

I remember it was a very well organized campaign. We had our strongest push in Kansas City and St. Louis, but the areas we were worried about were the small towns around Missouri.

IN THEIR

WORDS

Ted Kaimann
(Local 32)

It's up to us to educate everyone we see about the evils of this legislation. We must explain that a few billionaires are funding this attack on all Missouri workers. These few people did not spend tens of millions of dollars because they want you and me to live better. It's an attack first on those of us in organized labor. If they are successful in their endeavor to eliminate us, the non-union workers are next. Without us there is no one fighting for fair wages, benefits and safer working conditions. It is imperative that we elect labor-friendly legislators. Our political committee spends much time and effort interviewing candidates to determine which ones have our interest at heart. It's important not to dismiss these endorsements.

Abigail Martin
(Local 32)

I'm voting NO on Proposition A because it is designed to weaken unions in Missouri. I need my union to be strong so that I can enjoy the benefits that collective bargaining has brought me and my family. I pay dues, go to meetings and vote so that I can have a living wage, good health and retirement benefits and a safer, better-trained workforce that my union has provided.

Rahsan Stenson
(Local 315)

The Carpenters Union changed not only my life but my children's lives. My daughter has just completed her freshman year at Washburn University, where she's studying to be a lawyer. My two youngest boys are able to attend private school and my 14-year-old is playing competitive basketball & football year round. I recently purchased my grandmother's house and the lot next door, which is where the house I grew up in once stood. All of this is possible because of the Carpenters Union wages! Please protect our children's future. Vote No on Prop A.

In this country, women generally make less than their male coworkers. But a union contract guarantees that everyone gets paid fairly regardless of gender. Proposition A is damaging for everyone, but especially damaging for working women trying to balance a job, children and family commitments. We have come too far to allow "Right to Work" to drag us back into the past. That's why I'm voting NO on Prop A.

Don Turnbull and Ken Owens (below) and Steve Markus and John Manning (right) are doing a great job spreading the message Vote No On Prop A.

A big thanks to all of our current and retired carpenters across the district who are getting the word out. We can't win without you!

Donny Reed (Local 716 Millwrights) has this sign up at his fireworks stand (Reed's Rockets between exits 199 & 200) right on I-70 at Wright City.

EST Al Bond explains the dangers of so-called “Right to Work” at one of the many informational meetings held around Missouri.

SNAPSHOTS

Sisters in the Brotherhood spread the Prop A message while volunteering on a Habitat for Humanity build site in St. Charles County.

Retired carpenter Larry Kalish and Sue Suwaller, owner of Suwallers Bar & Grill in St. Louis County, urging patrons to Vote No On Prop A.

There is no cost to the CRC member, employed by a contributing union contractor, who properly registers, attends and completes courses (seated or online.) *Indicates courses that meet 8-hour safety requirement.
