Missouri Legislature Again Thwarts Will of Voters

Former U.S. Senator John Danforth said it best: "In the midst of the current public health crisis, our state Legislature is seeking to place a new constitutional amendment on an upcoming ballot. It would overturn voter-approved redistricting reforms before they could ever take effect. Instead, it would substitute a redistricting scheme more extreme than Missouri has ever seen."

In the last week of session, the Republican-led Legislature rammed through a proposed constitutional amendment seeking to thwart the will of the voters. We won't fall for it.

Front Line Fight

As other workers stage protests, labor unions are balancing the need to save jobs with the need to protect workers. Collective bargaining agreements are also providing added protections for those who find themselves furloughed. "Many workers who may have never contemplated union membership are organizing to demand better treatment."

Common Sense

Are you social distancing, eating lunch by yourself, avoiding crowded break areas, and not carpooling? Construction industry experts are preaching common sense precautions as more states open back up, and more workers head back to the job.

Exposed

COVID-19 is further exposing a crisis in the construction industry – one that union carpenters have long been warning about. Tax-dodging contractors are keeping two million construction workers from the workers' comp and unemployment insurance they need. "If the industry were operating as it should, our public reserves would be better able to relieve the economic misery to come."

Dream Home

Despite recent disruptions, our contracting partner Payne Family Homes is still on schedule in building this year's St. Jude Dream Home giveaway. Tickets go on sale next month for the $578,000 home with four bedrooms, five-car garage, wine cellar and family cinema.

(ABOVE) For the Kids: The right flooring makes all the difference. Stephens Floor Covering has crafted some whimsical cheer for patients and staff at Cardinal Glennon Children's Hospital in St. Louis.

(BELOW) GIVING BACK: Last week, Local 57 contractor Reinhold Electric hosted a food bank at St. Mattias School. More than 1,000 meals were given away to community members in need.
